March 14, 2025 - Ontario, Canada – With the recent acquisition of XGD Systems by NMP Construction, a new chapter is beginning for the Corlett family’s legacy in golf course renovation and restoration. Jackson Corlett, son of industry veteran Geoff Corlett, is now leading TDI Golf in Ontario, Canada, ushering in a new era of innovation and excellence.

For decades, XGD Systems has been a trusted name in golf course drainage and restoration, built on the expertise and vision of Geoff Corlett. As the company transitions under new ownership, Jackson Corlett is embracing the opportunity to continue his family’s tradition of craftsmanship and quality through TDI Golf. With a deep passion for golf course construction and a forward-thinking approach, Jackson aims to expand TDI Golf’s services, strengthen industry partnerships, and introduce innovative solutions to Canadian golf courses.

“My goal is to uphold the high standards my father established while driving TDI Golf toward new opportunities in golf construction and drainage solutions,” said Jackson Corlett. “We are committed to delivering the highest level of service and innovation, ensuring golf courses across Canada provide optimal conditions for players and staff alike.”

Under Jackson’s leadership, TDI Golf will continue to provide premier golf course renovation and construction services, specializing in drainage, bunker restoration, and overall course improvements. His vision includes integrating modern technology, sustainable practices, and efficient project management to enhance golf course infrastructure for the next generation.

The Corlett family’s expertise and dedication remain at the core of TDI Golf, ensuring Canadian golf courses benefit from their long-standing commitment to quality. As Jackson takes the helm, golf course superintendents, owners, and architects can expect a fresh perspective backed by decades of industry experience.
